

Web Sites

Catherine McCall

<http://www.fundraising-ideas.com/fundraisers/index.html>

This site is actually a directory by the Fundraising Bank. It has a ton of links to sites for cookie, lollipop and coupon book fundraisers. It contains information on and is helpful in any questions you may have. It also has some other great ideas that may prove useful.

<http://www.justfundraising.com/>

The Just Fundraising site is full of different ideas. It shows how to contact companies and get free samples for your school to help you out. It also provides information on profits for your school if you opt to sell their products.

<http://www.yesfund.com/>

This is an easy to follow site that gives new ideas for Student Governments to use in order to decide what products they may be able to sell. This is a good site for high schools. It has things such as class key chains that would help promote school spirit as well as raise money.

<http://www.raisemoremoney.com/>

This site has a slightly different take when it comes to fundraising. Instead of lollipops and candy, this site offers music from top artists. It may not be for all schools but it may be worth checking out!

<http://www.fundraising-information.com/>

This site is full of a variety of possible products to sell. It also gives out additional help if you are unsure what to do.

<http://www.schoolpromotions.com/>

This is a great school spirit fundraiser. This site offers a variety of products that your SGA can order to sell. Check it out!

<http://www.fundraisingweb.org/WM/Events/>

This web site has a variety of links that offer different ideas for events that do not require any product selling. It has more school and community ideas that may help to raise money for your SGA and help get the entire school involved.